originally published in 1976 representing years of critical reflection the theory of criticism attempts to construct a poetics of presence within a wide range of critical terminology murray krieger has sought to create a new vision in language that is passionate and often dramatic he looks at the multidimensionality of the poetic world through the lens of western poetics his work clearly addresses itself to post new critical questions how to preserve the literary object as a thing to be perceived valued and enjoyed and yet to account for its presence in and interaction with our culture as a whole always in danger of being dissolved into man's language making and forming activity in general our awareness of the poem as object must be modified by our awareness that it is an intentional object krieger develops his balanced vision in three parts part 1 defines the problem and defends the very activity of theorizing both in its own terms and in terms of the critic s function throughout the history of western criticism by asking at the outset whether criticism is vain or valuable krieger already confronts the basic tension between system and world and the need to account for both by creating a heuristic system that examines the possibility of form the critic serves also the world of history and thought as a whole part 2 pursues that history from the classical encounter with mimesis in greek thought to the romantic and post romantic elevation of consciousness as a main criterion of poetic art defining a humanistic aesthetic as it has been viewed since aristotle the author shows how during and after the eighteenth century form was opened up under the impact of a kantian and post kantian view epitomized finally by coleridge s imagination and its consequences for recent theorists part 3 deals with the image of the world struggling against its enclosure within a poetic context it expands our view of metaphor as a reflection of the dual nature of poetic language simultaneously locked into the poem and referring to history and nature outside our reading of the poem krieger concludes must be double we must see the poem as a linear and chronological sequence reflecting real life and we must read it as a circular imitative mutually implicative mode originally published in 1987 in words about words about words murray krieger advances his ongoing dialogue with the rich diversity of contemporary literary theory and elaborates on his own position as it grows out of an opposing relation to much of current criticism krieger examines the kinds of ideologies and ontologies smuggled into literary theory that purports to be anti ideological and anti ontological he explores the extent to which critical fashions dictate the development of theory and the reasons why particular theories exclude certain kinds of literary works in favor of others under such circumstances krieger asks what becomes of the critic s task of evaluation further what is the relation of the idea of progress to criticism and the arts and what is the effect of these notions on cultural and intellectual institutions he seeks an alternative to the deterministic tendencies of the new historicism in viewing the relations of literature and literary criticism to society progressing from broad questions to more focused critical problems and close readings krieger reviews the aesthetic tradition as it has evolved from kant he engages in debate with deconstructionist critics about the role of symbol and allegory as descriptions of ways in which poems succeed or fail in constructing their verbal universe and he argues that for all its brilliance deconstruction has not yet been able to fulfill the social or academic functions of the older aesthetic based disciplines that it set out to deconstruct
